They had been in the forest for some time, and the sun was low in the sky. The forest was dense with tall trees and thick undergrowth. The two men were walking slowly, looking around at the surrounding forest. They were both dressed in simple, dark clothing. The man on the left was slightly taller and had a more rugged appearance. The man on the right was shorter and had a more refined look. They were both looking at each other with a serious expression. The forest was silent except for the occasional rustle of leaves or the chirping of a bird. The two men were walking towards a small clearing in the distance. "We opened the door," said Denis. "I saw Sam's penis. And there was the big gun lying about halfway across the room. Sam came in the next day, he turned the program on and I couldn't see it. I just looked at the door and the gun was there. The gun was in the the 1990s and 2000s, the number of people who have been convicted of a crime and sentenced to life in prison has increased significantly. This is due to a number of factors, including the fact that the legal system has become more punitive, and the fact that the number of people who are arrested and charged with a crime has increased.
